

-----Original Message-----

From: xxxxxxxx [SMTP:xxxxxxx]
Sent: 15 September 2010 17:00
To: DAFF (E-mail)
Subject: Incidence of bovine TB in conventional and organic herds

Dear Sir/Madam,

I see that out of all comments left at <http://www.guardian.co.uk/environment/2010/sep/15/badger-cull-england-jim-paice> the following comment received the most recommendations by people browsing the page.

"Go organic, have less stock and have a healthy TB free farm."

If you can, please advise me if you are aware of any body of work, a set of reasonably unbiased figures, or quote from a respected expert which casts some light on whether the incidence of bovine TB is less in organic herds than in conventional herds.

Yours faithfully,

xxxxxxx
xxxxxxxxx
xxxxxxxxx
xxxxxxxxx
xxxxxxx
xxxxxxx
xxxxxxxxx